Lives have been lost, railway and river embankments swept away, bridges broken down, villages flooded, farms inundated and vast tracts of grain-growing land converted into lakes and swamps by the torrents of rain. A great famine is feared in all the above named provinces.

ALLEGED MISCEGENATION.

Mayor Zollinger Disclaims Any Knowledge of the Affair.

Under flaming head lines the Peru Enterprise, of Monday, publishes a lengthy and sensational account of an extraordinary elopement in which a young Peru girl is said to have become enamored of a colored member of Sells Bros.' brass band, and deserting a pleasant home and kind parents fled to Fort Wayne where the girl and her dusky lover were united in the holy bonds of wedlock and immediately thereafter took their departure for the South, intending to make New Orleans their future home. Speaking of the flight of the girl to this city and her subsequent marriage the Enterprise says:

The officers were put upon the trail of the girl. The east-bound train Saturday carried to Fort Wayne the half-crazed father. Here he learned that the couple had that day been married by Mayor Zollinger, and had left the show party and started south. No further information could be obtained, and with a heart over-laden with grief and shame the distracted parent returned to this city.

In conversation with a representative of the SENTINEL this morning Mayor Zollinger indignantly disclaimed any knowledge whatever of the circumstances surrounding the affair, supplementing the statement with the assertion that he had not married anybody for a month or more. Inquiry at several of the Justices' offices revealed the fact that no wedding of the character in question or at the time specified had been solemnized therein, and there is evidently some misunderstanding as to the facts in the premises.

The Enterprise says the following is a copy of a note left by the wayward girl prior to taking her departure for this city on Friday night last:

DEAR MOTHER:—I have gone with him I love dearer than anything on earth, my own dear parents not excepted. I will be married to him at Fort Wayne, and together we will travel through the country. Do not worry for me, for I love him to distraction, and without him I could not live, and with him as my husband I shall be content and happy. Forgive me for what you may think a wrong doing.

Your loving daughter,
FANNIE S——.

MARRIED MISERY

Has Made Emma McElfatrick Sue for Divorce.

Emma McElfatrick is more convinced than ever that man is a fickle, falsehearted creature and unworthy of woman's confidence. But Emma didn't use to think so, for in 1870 she entered into an agreement with John McElfatrick to enter the matrimonial boat and sail down life's stream with him providing he would man the oars. John agreed to such a proceeding and for a while the couple knew naught but joy. "But alas for the rarity of christian charity under the sun" John laid back on his oars and finally refused to row any longer. Emma was then forced to take the oars herself and propel the boat until she too has become tired of such business and asks leave to desert the boat and John too. The latter she claims has especial facilities to demolish whiskey and in the fullness of his heart has several times volunteered to make a corpse out of the enduring Emma, but she now wants a divorce and all she claims will be well.

Chicago, August 19.—The Committee on location of the next triennial conclave of Knights Templar report to the Grand Commandery in favor of San Francisco as the place of meeting in 1883. The Commandery has not yet acted, but as the report is unanimous they will probably endorse it.

The Fortune Bay Fishery Question

London, August 19.—The secretary of state for war in replying to a question in the House of Commons said the rumor that Forster had been summoned to Ireland was untrue. He went there in the ordinary course of his business.

The under foreign secretary in replying to a question said the negotiation between Great Britian and the United States regarding the Fortune Bay Fisheries the government would not produce the correspondence now, but hoped to do so soon.

A "Drummer" Murdered in a Brothel.

Denver, Col., August 19.—A traveling salesman, of the well-known tobacco house of Abel Bros', named Newberger, was mysteriously murdered last night about 10 o'clock at a house of ill fame. A bullet went through his mouth and brain. The body was found in the hall way in the building. Suspicion centers on two men who came to the house with him in the early part of the evening.

LATER.

Denver, August 19.—The police this morning arrested Carrie Smith, proprietress of the house of ill fame where Abram M. Newburger was killed last night; also Kitty Campbell and one or two others on suspicion of being implicated in the murder. The men in the house at the time who last night kept quiet this morning gave full particulars to the detectives and there is little doubt but the right parties have been arrested. A quarrel it seems occurred over beer. Carrie Smith applied opprobrious epithets to Newburger when he lost his temper and the women followed him down stairs and struck him with a bottle. A friend of the women then attacked Newburger and struck him on the back of the head a blow with a revolver which entered his skull. The city is much excited over the affair. Newburger leaves a wife and three children.

THE WICKED WIND.

It Blows Down a Laundry and Does Serious Damage.

During the terrific hail storm which struck the city this afternoon about three o'clock, the building at No. 50 Pearl street, occupied by the Troy Steam Laundry was blown down and the inmates narrowly escaped death. The building which had been a rather rickety structure for sometime past soon succumbed to the violent wind and fell over seriously injuring three young ladies named Myers, Armach and Flutter. The latter's injuries are more severe than the rest. She sustained a fracture of the shoulder besides a terrible gash in the back. The other ladies only received slight bruises about their heads and shoulders. At the time the building fell there were six ladies on the inside, but the other three whose names it was impossible to ascertain, received no injuries. Dr. Hanchling attended the above named ladies, who were so frightened that they became helpless. No permanent injury will ensue to any of them. The building is a complete wreck.

Wedded Woes.

Aaron Barrel has been in the habit of attempting to evicerate his sponse by inaugurating a series of thumping matinees in which he has assumed the title role. Josephine, for that is his wife's name, would like to "star" it alone through life hereafter, therefore she wishes the Superior Court to cut in twain the matrimonial ropes which now bind her and Aaron together.

THE railroads of the country are booming with business. At no period has there been such a promising outlook as that for the coming year.

GOVERNOR BROCKMEYER, of Missouri, will address the Democracy of the city at the Circuit Court Room this evening at eight o'clock. Let there be a full attendance.

THE death of OLE BULL, the celebrated violinist, so quickly following that of Miss ADELAIDE NEILSON, the renowned actress, will be deeply regretted by the musical and theatrical loving people everywhere.

"LAST Trip of the Season" at the head of an excursion advertisement, indicates the near approach of a great many last trips. If September, however, should give us September weather, the pleasantest month of the year for travel and sporting trips is yet to come. The schools and business have more to with regulating the excursion season than the weather itself, and both of them will put in their demands for a return to city life in about two weeks.

IN the competitive drill of the Knights Templar, at Chicago, Indiana waltzed off with the first prize, it having been awarded by the judges last evening to Roper Commandery, of Indianapolis. The prizes consisted of swords and belts, drinking sets, commandery jewels, etc. The second prize went to Louisville, the third to Dayton and the fourth to St. Louis. The special prize for mounted men was awarded to Grand Rapids, Michigan. To the members of Roper Commandery, of Indianapolis, the SENTINEL sends greeting its congratulations.

OWEN county, this State, challenges any other county to show as true an old Democratic "stand-by" as it can in the person of ANDREW ARNEY. Mr. ARNEY is ninety-two years old. He walked a mile to attend the organization of the HANCOCK and ENGLISH club of Spencer township, in that county, and was the first to sign his name to the constitution of the club. He wrote his name in a large, round, legible hand without using glasses. He voted for JAMES MADISON for President, and for every Democratic candidate for the same office since. His chief desire is to live to see another Democratic President. If every Democrat in the State manifests a like spirit the old veteran will have his desire gratified.

WILLIAM H. ENGLISH, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, is a man who never sought office. Office has always sought him. He was eight years a member of Congress, and when at the expiration of his fourth term he declined a re-election, the convention which nominated his successor unanimously passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That in selecting a candidate to represent this district in the Thirty-seventh Congress, we deem it a proper occasion to express the respect and esteem we entertain for our present member, Hon. W. H. ENGLISH, and our confidence in him as a public officer. In his retirement, in accordance with his well known wishes, from the position of representative, which he has so long filled with credit to himself and benefit to the country, we heartily greet him with the plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

For fifteen years Mr. ENGLISH was intrusted with the management of one of the most important financial institutions of the west, in which he was associated with JOHN O. NEW, who was Treasurer of the United States under GRANT and who is now Chairman of the Indiana Republican State Committee; and when he voluntarily retired, the Direction unanimously passed a resolution of thanks, offered by Mr. NEW,

For the great financial ability, constant watchfulness and perfect fidelity, with which he has managed it from its organization to the present time.

With a life long record for spotless integrity and masterly ability, WILLIAM H. ENGLISH stands so high in public estimation that the puny attacks of the Republican press fail to reach him.

"The Argument of Epithets."

JUDGE TAYLOR has written and printed a speech with this title, made at Rome City, on the 10th inst., deprecating the use of epithets in political discussions, and especially the epithet "bloody shirt," thus printed several times in his own speech.

We desire to have a respect for Judge TAYLOR, if he will allow us to do so, but we cannot forget our memory of him as a "no party" man in 1874 Will he, therefore, please inform an anxious public whether his literary invention, used in his speech, viz: the elegant word "dywantyersisterto-marrynuigger?" is an epithet or not? or is it a "virtuperation," or what is it? As he is discussing "living issues," let us have a discussion or definition of this new coined word.

Judge TAYLOR is evidently not in love just now with "editors of Democratic newspapers;" certainly not so much as in 1874, when he had two faces, and talked on both sides, and loved both parties. Now, he even goes so far in the speech before us, as to insinuate, if not say, that "Democratic editors" are "strange animals," "asses," "parrots," and he talks distinctly about "idiotic democratic editors." How long does he suppose that he can pelt "democratic editors," with epithets of that sort, without their concluding and saying, that he is either so ignorant as not to know what an epithet is, or so partisan and untruthful as to be daily using epithets vilifying democrats, while pretending to deprecate "the argument of epithets?" We don't want to say of Judge TAYLOR that he is a political sham, but we are afraid we will have to say so, unless his argument against epithets is made of something else than epithets, the offspring of his own intense partisanship and wounded self love.

A Scotch poet, who, if he was a plowman, had some insight into human nature, and like HAMLET, knew "a hawk from a handsaw" once said:

"O wad some power the gifted gie us,
To see oursels as others see us;
It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
An' foolish notion, etc."

Did Judge TAYLOR ever think of that?

The Difference Between a Strong Man and a Weak One.

Judge BINGHAM, Republican member of Congress from Ohio, and after the death of THAD. STEVENS until his own, the acknowledged leader of his party in the House, was a clear-headed and courageous man. He foresaw that the Republican party could only hope to maintain its ascendency in Congress by assuming control of Presidential and Congressional elections. Up to the time that Judge BINGHAM introduced a bill for this purpose in the winter of 1871, (we believe that was the date,) all elections of Presidential Electors and members of Congress had been conducted solely under the State laws. It began to grow apparent, however, that Republican party ascendency could not be perpetuated unless it could secure for itself the control of all elections under the form of an act of Congress, which should shut out all supervision of them by any but the party itself. To this end the act was introduced and passed, and from that time to the present these elections have been constantly subject to the exclusive supervision of the Republican party. But it is not our main purpose at this time to enter into discussion of this subject. Our only purpose in referring to it is to introduce Judge BINGHAM as he stood among his partisans in his day, to the end that our readers may refresh their recollections of him, and re-assure themselves of the manner of man he was.

We have said he was a clear-headed and courageous man. These qualities enabled him to have a clear conception of a business transaction and gave to his opinion of it the strength of conviction. He bought Credit Mobilier stock of OAKES AMES upon precisely the same terms that Mr. GARFIELD bought his; but when charged with it he frankly avowed it and justified the purchase, and that was the end of the matter as far as he was concerned. His clear headedness and courage told him with all the strength of a moral conviction, that nobody in or out of Congress had a right to question him in the premises, and standing firmly to this impregnable position, he vindicated both his conduct and his manhood.

With GARFIELD, however, the case was otherwise. He stood in precisely the same circumstances as BINGHAM and was under the same accusation; but not being blessed with BINGHAM'S clear headed conception of his rights under the law and the facts of the case, his first impulse was that natural to weak and cowardly minds, viz: To seek shelter under a subterfuge of lies and misrepresentations, to be crowned by a final and inevitable act of downright perry.uj This was the first prompting that came to him under adversity, and like the weak man, he followed it. Instead of avowing and justifying a purchase innocent in itself, that he had a right to make and that a man of sagacity will never fail to make whenever he has a chance to, he got scared at less than a shadow, and true to the instincts of his nature, set to lying as the shortest, most obvious and easiest way out of it. He swore without the least apparent hesitation, that he never bought, or in any way, received any of the stock. How different from the course of Judge BINGHAM under precisely like charges. The contrast between the two men is not less striking in the off-hand intelligence than in manly courage of BINGHAM as compared with the confused notion of his rights, and utter lack of moral principle that marked the course of GARFIELD under the same circumstances.

Now we don't believe that GARFIELD is a sinner above all men because of this single lapse from integrity. His was but the common fault of weak and irresolute men. Of a man made of such stuff as BINGHAM was made, such conduct as GARFIELD'S could not be expected; but of a man like GARFIELD, braver in words than in deeds, it is but natural fruit. He simply fell because he had not strength to stand. Presidents should be made of stronger stuff.

ABDUCTED OR ELOPED.

The Romantic Story That Comes From Benton County.

Lafayette, Ind., August 16.—A strange story comes from the adjoining county of Benton, and it possesses so much of the sensational that it will be read with a good deal of interest. Briefly told, it is concerning the remarkable disappearance of a young wife and mother with her twin babes. About three years ago Jacob Woods, a young farmer and soldier of the late war, won the heart and hand of Miss Ella Romine, a respectable and handsome young lady, daughter of James Romine, a well-to-do farmer. The parents of the girl opposed the match bitterly, not upon any personal objections to Woods, but because he was poor. But the young people were married—meeting by chance the usual way. In time twins were born to them—bright little children—a boy and a girl, a blonde and a brunette. They were named Emory and Emma. The young couple were reasonably prosperous—made a good living and seemed happy in all their domestic relations. The husband was offered a situation on a government dredge-boat on the upper lakes. He accepted and took his wife and children along, locating them at Esquanobia, Delta county, Mich., where they kept boarders, the wife taking charge of the house and the husband filling his post of duty at good wages on the dredge-boat. Thus passed the spring and summer until three weeks ago, when they determined to return to Indiana. The husband obtained a pass for his wife to Chicago, and handing her $30 in money and a watch and chain he had that morning bought for her, took passage for himself on a tugboat for Chicago, where he could earn $2.50 per day on the journey. Reaching Chicago he found

but supposing they had come on to Indiana as directed, he left for Fowler by the Kankakee Line, but to his dismay found that nothing had been heard of them there. He returned by first train to Chicago and went direct to a fortune-teller, who told him that his wife and two children had eloped with a dark visaged man—that they had taken breakfast together in a State street restaurant on Thursday morning. The personal appearance and dress of the entire party were minutely described by this seer, who took $2 in advance for the information. Sure enough at the restaurant in question, the attendants well remembered just such a party, and then the husband remembered that on the train upon which his wife took passage from Esquanobia there was a dark-visaged man named John Barber, a Canadian of French extraction, swarthy as an Indian, with lantern jaws, high cheek bones, and ugly as a mud fence. This fellow had at one time boarded with them, and was known as Black Jack, or Nigger Jack, the wife often speaking of him or addressing him by this contemptuous nick-name. The husband was well nigh frantic. He could not believe that his wife had eloped, and day after day he wandered about Chicago, hoping against hope to gain some tidings of his lost ones. He remained until his money was exhausted, but obtained no clew beyond the statement of another boarder, who was on the same train, that he had seen them together in Chicago, and thought they had eloped to a town in Canada where Black Jack formerly lived. Two or three weeks have elapsed. The husband is at Atkinson, Benton county, Ind., eager for some tidings of his children. Reluctant to believe that his wife is faithless, he is apprehensive that she has been abducted against her will. The contempt and aversion for Black Jack had been so often manifested and so often expressed, that it seems wholly improbable that she would run away with such a fellow. The husband, sensitive to the scandal, has rather preferred to keep it out of print.

THE TUNNEL.

The Pay of the Dead Workmen Given to Their Families.

(New York Sun.)

Twenty-five days have passed since the accident in the Hudson River Tunnel, at the foot of Fifteenth street, Jersey City, by which 20 laborers were buried alive, and the managers say that at least thirty days more will have passed before the bodies of the men can be recovered. A large number of carpenters were employed yesterday in building the foundation for the caisson which is to be sunk in the tunnel.

A reporter who made a tour of the homes that these men quitted on the day of the disaster found their families contented to let the managers of the company do as they thought best. It was the opinion of these people that the company would do all that is possible to recover the bodies at the earliest possible moment.

"The company has been very generous to us," said the widow of one of the unfortunate laborers yesterday; "we are paid the money that our husbands would have earned each week, just as if they were yet at work, and I think we have nothing to complain of."

Mr. Hendly, who was found at work on the caisson, said that it was true that the managers are taking care of the men's families, and he added that they will continue to do so until the tunnel is finished. The widows of those who died in the employ of the company receive their husband's money every Saturday as if nothing had happened.

"Some of them," continued Mr. Headly, "are better off now than before. In one case in particular, the man had parted from his wife. They had not been on good terms for a long while. When the widow came here at the time of the accident to inquire as to his fate she was very poorly clad. Her principal garment was a calico wrapper. Now on her regular Saturday afternoon visit for her husband's money she wears ample and really nice clothing. Only two of the women come here regularly. To the others we send the money every week."

ALMOST INCREDIBLE.

Extraordinary Evidence in Regard to Click, the Alleged Murderous Sleep Walker of North Carolina.

[Charleston (N. C.) Observer.]

Information from Tyro, the scene of the recent somnambulistic murder, is that over one hundred people assembled at the coroner's inquest and preliminary trial. The body of Mr. Phelps was found lying nearly across the foot of the bed, on the right side, his head on his right arm, with three cuts of an axe, two of which, if not the third, were sufficient to cause instant death, one high enough on the head to reach the brain. The story of Mr. Click was that he dreamed the negro had entered the store, as anticipated by himself and Mr. Phelps. Then followed, according to his recollection, a bloody and terrible fight. When he awoke he was fleeing down stairs, and gradually recovering consciousness, he returned to the room where he and Phelps had been sleeping and realized at a glance the full horror of his deed. He at once fled screaming to the house of Mr. Grub, near by, and was met by that gentleman, who was aroused by his cries. Mr. Grub said his lamentations were heartrending, and that he told him at once that he had killed his best friend in his sleep. The alarm soon became general, and the neighbors collected from all quarters. They all testified that Click exhibited his regret in a most violent manner, and finally became so exhausted that he had to be carried home. It was proved by both the State and defendant's witnesses that Click was a somnambulist and had frequently injured his own person by jumping from the house window, sometimes through the glass from the second story, cutting himself considerably. He has also been known to get up and choke some of the family, saying that the bears in Texas were after him, and then run a quarter of a mile down near the river, and wake to find himself alone. When he went visiting he requested his neighbors to tie him, which they did. Last week he went to sleep in a room where his dead uncle lay a corpse. He suddenly arose with terrible expressions of fear, and started to seize his dead uncle. His sister and a gentleman caught him, got him awake, and he went back to bed. Many other instances were given. The court being satisfied from the evidence that the prisoner was not accountable for his actions while asleep, pronounced the evidence insufficient, whereupon Mr. Click returned to his home.

How the Prince Imperial Died.

Brigadier General Sir Evelyn Wood, who accompanied the ex-Empress Eugenie to Zululand, has sent to the papers a description of the death of the Prince Imperial, collected from the independent narratives of eighteen of the Zulus who participated in the attack on the Prince's party, and showing that the attacking party numbered forty, twelve of whom followed the Prince, and eight being immediately concerned in his death. The Zulus, having nearly surrounded the Prince's party, fired, and rushed on them as they were mounting. The Prince not having succeeded in mounting, ran alongside his horse until it broke away. The Prince followed his horse into the donga, until, being closely pressed by his pursuers, he turned upon them—in the words of the Zulus—"like a lion at bay." Being struck by an assegai inside the left shoulder, he rushed at the nearest opponent, who fled. Another Zulu then fired at the Prince when only ten yards from him. The Prince fired his pistol and faced his rapidly increasing foes, until menaced from his right and rear, and struck by another assegai, he regained the level on which he had first stood in the donga where he was speedily surrounded. He seized an assegai which had been thown to him—in struggling with his terrified horse his sword had fallen from its scabbard—and thus defended himself against seven or eight Zulus, who state they did not care to close in on him until he sank exhausted on his hips. The above facts were elicited from the Zulus, who were examined separately on the scene of the attack. It may be remarked that this is the first correct description of the affair that has yet been published.

Recipes for the Cook.

Bread Cakes.—Take any bits of bread you may have left after meals, soak them in milk or milk and water, until perfectly soft; mash fine, add two eggs, pinch of soda, salt to taste, and enough flour to make them fry nicely; drop the spoonfuls into hot butter or lard. These are inexpensive and good, and a better way to use dry bread than in puddings.

To Boil Eggs.—To boil eggs properly, place them in a dish having a close cover; pour over boiling water; cover and set away from the fire for ten or fifteen minutes. Eggs cooked in this way are more delicious and digestible than when allowed to boil in the old way. The heat of the water cooks them slowly to a jelly like consistency, leaving the yolk harder than the white.

Sweetbreads Stewed.—Wash carefully, remove all bits of skin and fleshy matter, cover with cold water and heat to a boil; pour off the hot water and cover with cold until the sweetbreads are firm. If liked, rich lard as for frying before you put in the second water; stir in a very little water the second time. When they are tender add for each sweet bread a heaping teaspoonful of butter, a little chopped parsley, pepper, salt, and little cream. Let them simmer in this gravy for five minutes. Send to the table in a covered dish with gravy poured over them.

A Cream for Fruit.—Boil half a pint of cream and half a pint of milk with a bit of lemon peel; add a few almonds beaten to a paste with a drop of water and a little sugar. Take a teaspoonful of dried flour, rub it smoothly down with a little cold milk and few drops of orange-flower water; mix all together and let boil; let it remain till quite cool, and then add a little lemon juice.

Buttermilk Pudding.—Although from its consistency this can scarcely be called a pudding, still it is a very nice desert, and was eaten by our grandmothers when farina and corn starch were unheard of delicacies: Boil one quart of fresh buttermilk; beat one egg, a pinch of salt and a heaping teaspoonful of flour together, and pour into the boiling milk; stir briskly, and boil for two or three minutes, and serve while warm with sugar, or still better, maple syrup.

Good crullers.—To one quart of flour rub two scant teaspoonsful sea-foam, lump of butter the size of an egg, good cupful white sugar, a pinch of salt, yolks of two eggs. Work these together thoroughly, but very lightly, using the tips of your fingers. Moisten with enough milk to make as soft a dough as possible to roll out, using as little flour as you can, rolling out into twists. It must be a sticky dough. Keep your fingers just dipped in flour. If the mixture be too stiff, your crullers will be tough. Too much working will toughen them too. Have your lard well boiling, and drop in quickly and watch carefully.

The year 1880 is destined, it is believed, to be very memorable in the ecclesiastical annals of Germany, inasmuch as not only is it to see Cologne Cathedral completed, but the venerable cathedral of Frankfort-on-Main, part of which was burned in 1867, restored. Interest in this structure centres in the electoral chapel, in which the Archbishop of Maintz used to crown the German emperors, who were then anointed before the high alter. The first was thus crowned in 1662, and the last in 1792.

STATE NEWS.

Bedford is excited over a five-foot alligator found in a pond near by.

J. B. Ellis' saw-mill south of Spencer was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. No insurance. Cause unknown.

L. P. Newby, an attorney at Knightstown, has been nominated for Prosecuting Attorney by the Republicans of Henry and Hancock counties.

Secretary Thompson and family have arrived at their home in Terre Haute, from the Pacific coast. He will remain there for some time.

John Barnes, of Hope, found James Piper at his house making himself too much at home, and ordered him away. Pipe went, but soon began stoning the house. Barnes fired at him, shooting him in the neck and inflicting a probably fatal wound.

The reservoir of the Warsaw Gaslight and Coke company burst on last Friday night. The company had expected to light the city with gas on last Thursday evening, but this accident will cause them to postpone the grand lighting up for a short time.

A bloody and desperate affray took place at Bedford, Lawrence county, between Charles and Emil Claussen and three stonecutters employed at the quarries near that town, in which Charles Claussen received nine stabs, two of them in the abdomen, and dangerous. All the parties concerned were arrested except the wounded man.

About four o'clock yesterday afternoon the barn of J. Raker, four miles from South Bond, was struck by lightning and burned down, together with its contents, consisting in part of sixteen bushels of wheat and twenty tons of hay. Loss, $2,500; insurance, $600.

A collision of a wrecking train with a disabled passenger train on the St. Louis Air Line road, near Carmel, badly wrecked both engines. A brakeman named Vickers had his left leg so crushed that it had to be amputated. Road agent Sullivan, trainman Jacob Mauck and Wm. McDole and fireman Quest were more or less severely injured.

An Entertainment of Surpassing Interest.

The Montreal Herald thus unqualifiedly endorses Forepaugh's stupendous combination of menagerie, museum, circus, &c.:

"Both performances of Forepaugh's monster aggregation yesterday attracted immense audiences; far more than could ever hope to gain admittance crowded around the entrance gate, and only when it was necessary to proclaim that no more money would be taken, did those who were unfortunate enough to be last, turn away. The attractions of the circus and the excellence of the menagerie are now well-known themes and scarcely require to be again impressed upon the minds of our readers. Were it necessary there could be hardly any limit to a description. Each special feature is well worthy separate mention, and, moreover, eulogy. We can, however, heartily advise our readers to go and judge for themselves whether all that has been said of the show is not fulfilled, and in fact, more than fulfilled, whether it be the marvelous performances of the female Blondin, the daring feats of bare-back riding, the excruciatingly comical clows, the awe-inspiring cannon act of Mons. Royal; all are alike wonderful, and when combined with the collection of animals, form together an entertainment of surpassing interest."

But few of our people were acquainted with Mr. Colerick and had never met him before and we can safely assure him the entire vote of the Democratic party of Noble county this fall with some Republicans thrown in.

BACCHUS' BOOM.

The Impetus It Received at Police Court To-day.

John McNickle was the name of the first victim that waltzed up to the bar of justice to take his medicine this morning at police court. It was presumed that John had been drinking something slightly stronger than water and John's breath would warrant one in the opinion that he had a distillery in his stomach. His hands betokened hard labor, while the superfluous slack in his pants betokened an agonizing absence of grub. He explained all about how he came to get drunk, and his honor explained how it was that he would have to enrich the city treasury $8.00 worth. John didn't have the money, so those desiring to secure him, for lecture engagements will address, "John McNickle, Stone Crackery," for the next fifteen days.

Luke Nolan, is one of those persons especially designed by providence to get a "corner" on whiskey. Luke did succeed in getting a corner in the calaboose and $5.00 of Luke's money now occupies a corner in the treasury.

Chas. Murphy, "the man with the iron jaw" put in his semi-occasional appearance at the reception. The cause of Murphy's discomfiture was the superfluous imbibation of various beverages not calculated to strengthen the locomotive powers of man and his honor deposited his avoirdupois on Murphy's anatomy to the extent of $5, which owing to the fact that Murphy does not carry a mint around in his pockets he was unable to pay and was compelled to accept a position in the cruckery.

List of Officers.

The following is the list of officers appointed at the meeting of the "First Voters," held in the Circuit Court room last Tuesday evening:

FIELD OFFICERS.

Captain, Andrew Josephus Moynihan; First Lieutenant, Will Miner; Second Lieutenant, Emil Legraw; Third Lieutenant, Frank J. McMilty; Orderly Sergeant, Frank J. Woulfe; Corporal, Will M. Limecooley, Frank Gruber, C. D. Buckalow and Ed. France; Standard Bearers, Thomas O. Meagher, O. Keefe.

PRESIDING OFFICERS.

President, Josephus Francis Beegan; Vice-President, Joe Evans; Recording Secretary, Chas. L. Worden; Corresponding Secretary, A. Levanway; Treasurer, Henry Monning, jr.; Executive Committee, Will Mannix, Christ Myers, Henry Shuckman, Emil Legraw, Will Limecooley and Will Geary.

Just in Time.

About half past nine o'clock last night while officer Connors was going over the Fairfield avenue railroad crossing he noticed a short distance up the track a dark object lying across the rails. The passenger train bound west was approaching and he ran to see what the object occupying such a curious position could be. When he came up he found it to be a man in a beastly state of intoxication and unable to rise. The officer pulled him off the track and as he did the train went by. The fellow was taken to the calaboose and he can thank his stars and Connors that the coroner lost a stiff. His escape was almost miraculous.

Robbed.

At the south depot yesterday afternoon a well dressed man was robbed of a gold watch and $40 in money. As he could give no intelligent account of how it had disappeared, it is presumed he laid down and went to sleep and during the time was robbed. No clue has yet been obtained to the robbers nor is it at all likely that any will be.

Tony Pastor's Company.

To-morrow evening Tony Pastor's celebrated company will appear at the Academy of Music on which occasion a most excellent programme will be presented. The New York Herald of a recent date speaking of Pastor's Theatre, in that city, says: There was an overflowing house at this place of amusement last evening, and the ladies were out in force to witness one of the brightest and most amusing entertainments for which this theatre has become noted. Tony Pastor, a host in himself, has surrounded himself with a galaxy of the best artists in their respective lines, and last evening its full strength was brought into requisition. The French sisters in their characteristic clog dances, and the St. Felix sisters, four prétty little girls, in their pleasing songs, dances and marches, were particular features of the evening's programme. The acme of grotesque dancing and burlesque fighting was reached by "The Four Eccentrics" in their scene, and the Irish dialogues of the Kernell brothers were received with peals of laughter. Song and dance, mirth and music, comedy and burlesque tragedy, all found able exponents, and were presented in a manner which rendered the entertainment one of honest fun and good hearty humor. The burlesque of "Go West on the Emigrant Train" has been reconstructed and new situations introduced, and in its present shape met with a hearty reception.

Martin Blim, esq., editor of the Deutsch Amerikaner, a German weekly in Waterloo, Ill., sends the following flattering commendation: All that I wish you in your business is success; because such an article as you offer to the public, merits recommendation. My wife uses Hamburg Drops whenever she feels unwell, and the result is always satisfactory. Accept the thanks of myself and family for this valuable remedy.

MOTHS IN UPHOLSTERY.

For a suit of parlor furniture purchase three gallons of benzine and saturate the upholstery with the same by means of a watering pot, to which attach a rose sprinkler. Every moth, larvæ and egg will be killed. The benzine will dry out in a few hours, and in three or four days the odor will entirely disappear. The benzine will not injure the varnish or fabric, or wood or hair stuffing. Carpets can be treated in like manner with good effect. For furs, flannels, indeed all woolen articles which moth attack, benzine is almost invaluable. Such goods should be placed in a box sprinkled with benzine, after which close the box tightly, and in a day or two the pests will be exterminated and the benzine will evaporate on opening. In using benzine great care should be taken that no fire is near by, as the liquid, in fluid or vapor form, is very inflammable.

The above information will be valuable to many. But as an ounce of prevention is well said to be worth a pound of cure, it would be well to purchase all your upholstered furniture of Foster Brothers, who have never yet had a moth in their furniture department, who never propose to [illegible] and who will pay to any person who will prove they ever sold a piece of furniture troubled with these pests.

Foster Brothers guarantee every article of furniture or bedding that goes out of their establishment. They have every reason to believe they are selling furniture and bedding at smaller profits than was ever before attempted by any house in America.

ALLEGED MISCEGENATION.

Mayor Zollinger Disclaims Any Knowledge of the Affair.

Under flaming head lines the Peru Enterprise, of Monday, publishes a lengthy and sensational account of an extraordinary elopement in which a young Peru girl is said to have become enamored of a colored member of Sells Bros.' brass band, and deserting a pleasant home and kind parents fled to Fort Wayne where the girl and her dusky lover were united in the holy bonds of wedlock and immediately thereafter took their departure for the South, intending to make New Orleans their future home. Speaking of the flight of the girl to this city and her subsequent marriage the Enterprise says:

The officers were put upon the trail of the girl. The east-bound train Saturday carried to Fort Wayne the half-crazed father. Here he learned that the couple had that day been married by Mayor Zollinger, and had left the show party and started south. No further information could be obtained, and with a heart over-laden with grief and shame the distracted parent returned to this city.

In conversation with a representative of the SENTINEL this morning Mayor Zollinger indignantly disclaimed any knowledge whatever of the circumstances surrounding the affair, supplementing the statement with the assertion that he had not married anybody for a month or more. Inquiry at several of the Justices' offices revealed the fact that no wedding of the character in question or at the time specified had been solemnized therein, and there is evidently some misunderstanding as to the facts in the premises.

The Enterprise says the following is a copy of a note left by the wayward girl prior to taking her departure for this city on Friday night last:

DEAR MOTHER:—I have gone with him I love dearer than anything on earth, my own dear parents not excepted. I will be married to him at Fort Wayne, and together we will travel through the country. Do not worry for me, for I love him to distraction, and without him I could not live, and with him as my husband I shall be content and happy. Forgive me for what you may think a wrong-doing.

Your loving daughter,

MARRIED MISERY

Has Made Emma McElfatrick Sue for Divorce.

Emma McElfatrick is more convinced than ever that man is a fickle, falsehearted creature and unworthy of woman's confidence. But Emma didn't use to think so, for in 1870 she entered into an agreement with John McElfatrick to enter the matrimonial boat and sail down life's stream with him providing he would man the oars. John agreed to such a proceeding and for a while the couple knew naught but joy. "But alas for the rarity of christian charity under the sun" John laid back on his oars and finally refused to row any longer. Emma was then forced to take the oars herself and propel the boat until she too has become tired of such business and asks leave to desert the boat and John too. The latter she claims has especial facilities to demolish whiskey and in the fullness of his heart has several times volunteered to make a corpse out of the enduring Emma, but she now wants a divorce and all she claims will be well.

The Fortune Bay Fishery Question

London, August 19.—The secretary of state for war in replying to a question in the House of Commons said the rumor that Forster had been summoned to Ireland was untrue. He went there in the ordinary course of his business.

The under foreign secretary in replying to a question said the negotiation between Great Britian and the United States regarding the Fortune Bay Fisheries the goverment would not produce the correspondence now, but hoped to do so soon.

A "Drummer" Murdered in a Brothel.

Denver, Col., August 19.—A traveling salesman, of the well-known tobacco house of Abel Bros', named Newberger, was mysteriously murdered last night about 10 o'clock at a house of ill fame. A bullet went through his mouth and brain. The body was found in the hall way in the building. Suspicion centers on two men who came to the house with him in the early part of the evening.

LATER.

Denver, August 19.—The police this morning arrested Carrie Smith, proprietress of the house of ill fame where Abram M. Newburger was killed last night; also Kitty Campbell and one or two others on suspicion of being implicated in the murder. The men in the house at the time who last night kept quiet this morning gave full particulars to the detectives and there is little doubt but the right parties have been arrested. A quarral it seems occurred over beer. Carrie Smith applied opprobrious epithets to Newburger when he lost his temper and the women followed him down stairs and struck him with a bottle. A friend of the women then attacked Newburger and struck him on the back of the head a blow with a revolver which entered his skull. The city is much excited over the affair. Newburger leaves a wife and three children.

THE WICKED WIND.

It Blows Down a Laundry and Does Serious Damage.

During the terrific hail storm which struck the city this afternoon about three o'clock, the building at No. 50 Pearl street, occupied by the Troy Steam Laundry was blown down and the inmates narrowly escaped death. The building which had been a rather rickety structure for sometime past soon succumbed to the violent wind and fell over seriously injuring three young ladies named Myers, Armach and Flutter. The latter's injuries are more severe than the rest. She sustained a fracture of the shoulder besides a terrible gash in the back. The other ladies only received slight bruises about their heads and shoulders. At the time the building fell there were six ladies on the inside, but the other three whose names it was impossible to ascertain, received no injuries. Dr. Heuchling attended the above named ladies, who were so frightened that they became helpless. No permanent injury will ensue to any of them. The building is a complete wreck.

Wedded Woes.

Aaron Barrel has been in the habit of attempting to evicerate his spouse by inaugurating a series of thumping matinees in which he has assumed the title role. Josephine, for that is his wife's name, would like to "star" it alone through life hereafter, therefore she wishes the Superior Court to cut in twain the matrimonial ropes which now bind her and Aaron together.

THE railroads of the country are booming with business. At no period has there been such a promising outlook as that for the coming year.

GOVERNOR BROCKMEYER, of Missouri, will address the Democracy of the city at the Circuit Court Room this evening at eight o'clock. Let there be a full attendance.

THE death of OLE BULL, the celebrated violinist, so quickly following that of Miss ADELAIDE NEILSON, the renowned actress, will be deeply regretted by the musical and theatrical loving people everywhere.

"LAST Trip of the Season" at the head of an excursion advertisement, indicates the near approach of a great many last trips. If September, however, should give us September weather, the pleasantest month of the year for travel and sporting trips is yet to come. The schools and business have more to with regulating the excursion season than the weather itself, and both of them will put in their demands for a return to city life in about two weeks.

IN the competitive drill of the Knights Templar, at Chicago, Indiana waltzed off with the first prize, it having been awarded by the judges last evening to Roper Commandery, of Indianapolis. The prizes consisted of swords and belts, drinking sets, commandery jewels, etc. The second prize went to Louisville, the third to Dayton and the fourth to St. Louis. The special prize for mounted men was awarded to Grand Rapids, Michigan. To the members of Roper Commandery, of Indianapolis, the SENTINEL sends greeting its congratulations.

OWEN county, this State, challenges any other county to show as true an old Democratic "stand-by" as it can in the person of ANDREW ARNEY. Mr. ARNEY is ninety-two years old. He walked a mile to attend the organization of the HANCOCK and ENGLISH club of Spencer township, in that county, and was the first to sign his name to the constitution of the club. He wrote his name in a large, round, legible hand without using glasses. He voted for JAMES MADISON for President, and for every Democratic candidate for the same office since. His chief desire is to live to see another Democratic President. If every Democrat in the State manifests a like spirit the old veteran will have his desire gratified.

WILLIAM H. ENGLISH, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, is a man who never sought office. Office has always sought him. He was eight years a member of Congress, and when at the expiration of his fourth term he declined a re-election, the convention which nominated his successor unanimously passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That in selecting a candidate to represent this district in the Thirty-seventh Congress, we deem it a proper occasion to express the respect and esteem we entertain for our present member, Hon. W. H. ENGLISH, and our confidence in him as a public officer. In his retirement, in accordance with his well known wishes, from the position of representative, which he has so long filled with credit to himself and benefit to the country, we heartily greet him with the plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

For fifteen years Mr. ENGLISH was intrusted with the management of one of the most important financial institutions of the west, in which he was associated with JOHN C. NEW, who was Treasurer of the United States under GRANT and who is now Chairman of the Indiana Republican State Committee; and when he voluntarily retired, the Direction unanimously passed a resolution of thanks, offered by Mr. NEW,

For the great financial ability, constant watchfulness and perfect fidelity with which he has managed it from its organization to the present time.

With a life long record for spotless integrity and masterly ability, WILLIAM H. ENGLISH stands so high in public estimation that the puny attacks of the Republican press fail to reach him.

"The Argument of Epithets."

JUDGE TAYLOR has written and printed a speech with this title, made at Rome City, on the 10th inst., deprecating the use of epithets in political discussions, and especially the epithet "bloody shirt," thus printed several times in his own speech.

We desire to have a respect for Judge TAYLOR, if he will allow us to do so, but we cannot forget our memory of him as a "no party" man in 1874 Will he, therefore, please inform an anxious public whether his literary invention, used in his speech, viz: the elegant word "dywantyersistertomarryanigger?" is an epithet or not? or is it a "virtuperation," or what is it? As he is discussing "living issues," let us have a discussion or definition of this new coined word.

Judge TAYLOR is evidently not in love just now with "editors of Democratic newspapers;" certainly not so much as in 1874, when he had two faces, and talked on both sides, and loved both parties. Now, he even goes so far in the speech before us, as to insinuate, if not say, that "Democratic editors" are "strange animals," "asses," "parrots," and he talks distinctly about "idiotic democratic editors." How long does he suppose that he can pelt "democratic editors," with epithets of that sort, without their concluding and saying, that he is either so ignorant as not to know what an epithet is, or so partisan and untruthful as to be daily using epithets vilifying democrats, while pretending to deprecate "the argument of epithets?" We don't want to say of Judge TAYLOR that he is a political sham, but we are afraid we will have to say so, unless his argument against epithets is made of something else than epithets, the offspring of his own intense partisanship and wounded self love.

A Scotch poet, who, if he was a plowman, had some insight into human nature, and like HAMLET, knew "a hawk from a handsaw" once said:

"O wad some power the gifted gie us,
To see oursels as others see us;
It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
An' foolish notion, etc."

Did Judge TAYLOR ever think of that?

The Difference Between a Strong Man and a Weak One.

Judge BINGHAM, Republican member of Congress from Ohio, and after the death of THAD. STEVENS until his own, the acknowledged leader of his party in the House, was a clear headed and courageous man. He foresaw that the Republican party could only hope to maintain its ascendency in Congress by assuming control of Presidential and Congressional elections. Up to the time that Judge BINGHAM introduced a bill for this purpose in the winter of 1871, (we believe that was the date,) all elections of Presidential Electors and members of Congress had been conducted solely under the State laws. It began to grow apparent, however, that Republican party ascendency could not be perpetuated unless it could secure for itself the control of all elections under the form of an act of Congress, which should shut out all supervision of them by any but the party itself. To this end the act was introduced and passed, and from that time to the present these elections have been constantly subject to the exclusive supervision of the Republican party. But it is not our main purpose at this time to enter into discussion of this subject. Our only purpose in referring to it is to introduce Judge BINGHAM as he stood among his partisans in his day, to the end that our readers may refresh their recollections of him, and re-assure themselves of the manner of man he was.

We have said he was a clear-headed and courageous man. These qualities enabled him to have a clear conception of a business transaction and gave to his opinion of it the strength of conviction. He bought Credit Mobilier stock of OAKES AMES upon precisely the same terms that Mr. GARFIELD bought his; but when charged with it he frankly avowed it and justified the purchase, and that was the end of the matter as far as he was concerned. His clear headedness and courage told him with all the strength of a moral conviction, that nobody in or out of Congress had a right to question him in the premises, and standing firmly to this impregnable position, he vindicated both his conduct and his manhood.

With GARFIELD, however, the case was otherwise. He stood in precisely the same circumstances as BINGHAM and was under the same accusation; but not being blessed with BINGHAM'S clear headed conception of his rights under the law and the facts of the case, his first impulse was that natural to weak and cowardly minds, viz: To seek shelter under a subterfuge of lies and misrepresentations, to be crowned by a final and inevitable act of downright perry.uj This was the first prompting that came to him under adversity, and like the weak man, he followed it. Instead of avowing and justifying a purchase innocent in itself, that he had a right to make and that a man of sagacity will never fail to make whenever he has a chance to, he got scared at less than a shadow, and true to the instincts of his nature, set to lying as the shortest, most obvious and easiest way out of it. He swore without the least apparent hesitation, that he never bought, or in any way, received any of the stock. How different from the course of Judge BINGHAM under precisely like charges. The contrast between the two men is not less striking in the off-hand intelligence than in manly courage of BINGHAM as compared with the confused notion of his rights, and utter lack of moral principle that marked the course of GARFIELD under the same circumstances.

Now we don't believe that GARFIELD is a sinner above all men because of this single lapse from integrity. His was but the common fault of weak and irresolute men. Of a man made of such stuff as BINGHAM was made, such conduct as GARFIELD'S could not be expected; but of a man like GARFIELD, braver in words than in deeds, it is but natural fruit. He simply fell because he had not strength to stand. Presidents should be made of stronger stuff.

ABDUCTED OR ELOPED.

The Romantic Story That Comes From Benton County.

Lafayette, Ind., August 16.—A strange story comes from the adjoining county of Benton, and it possesses so much of the sensational that it will be read with a good deal of interest. Briefly told, it is concerning the remarkable disappearance of a young wife and mother with her twin babes. About three years ago Jacob Woods, a young farmer and soldier of the late war, won the heart and hand of Miss Ella Romine, a respectable and handsome young lady, daughter of James Romine, a well-to-do farmer. The parents of the girl opposed the match bitterly, not upon any personal objections to Woods, but because he was poor. But the young people were married—meeting by chance the usual way. In time twins were born to them—bright little children—a boy and a girl, a blonde and a brunette. They were named Emory and Emma. The young couple were reasonably prosperous—made a good living and seemed happy in all their domestic relations. The husband was offered a situation on a government dredge-boat on the upper lakes. He accepted and took his wife and children along, locating them at Esquanobia, Delta county, Mich., where they kept boarders, the wife taking charge of the house and the husband filling his post of duty at good wages on the dredge-boat. Thus passed the spring and summer until three weeks ago, when they determined to return to Indiana. The husband obtained a pass for his wife to Chicago, and handing her $30 in money and a watch and chain he had that morning bought for her, took passage for himself on a tugboat for Chicago, where he could earn $2.50 per day on the journey. Reaching Chicago he found

but supposing they had come on to Indiana as directed, he left for Fowler by the Kankakee Line, but to his dismay found that nothing had been heard of them there. He returned by first train to Chicago and went direct to a fortune-teller, who told him that his wife and two children had eloped with a dark visaged man—that they had taken breakfast together in a State street restaurant on Thursday morning. The personal appearance and dress of the entire party were minurely described by this seer, who took $2 in advance for the information. Sure enough at the restaurant in question, the attendants well remembered just such a party, and then the husband remembered that on the train upon which his wife took passage from Esquanobia there was a dark-visaged man named John Barber, a Canadian of French extraction, swarthy as an Indian, with lantern jaws, high cheek bones, and ugly as a mud fence. This fellow had at one time boarded with them, and was known as Black Jack, or Nigger Jack, the wife often speaking of him or addressing him by this contemptuous nick-name. The husband was well nigh frantic. He could not believe that his wife had eloped, and day after day he wandered about Chicago, hoping against hope to gain some tidings of his lost ones. He remained until his money was exhausted, but obtained no clew beyond the statement of another boarder, who was on the same train, that he had seen them together in Chicago, and thought they had eloped to a town in Canada where Black Jack formerly lived. Two or three weeks have elapsed. The husband is at Atkinson, Benton county, Ind., eager for some tidings of his children. Reluctant to believe that his wife is faithless, he is apprehensive that she has been abducted against her will. The contempt and aversion for Black Jack had been so often manifested and so often expressed, that it seems wholly improbable that she would run away with such a fellow. The husband, sensitive to the scandal, has rather preferred to keep it out of print.

THE TUNNEL.

The Pay of the Dead Workmen Given to Their Families.

[New York Sun.]

Twenty-five days have passed since the accident in the Hudson River Tunnel, at the foot of Fifteenth street, Jersey City, by which 20 laborers were buried alive, and the managers say that at least thirty days more will have passed before the bodies of the men can be recovered. A large number of carpenters were employed yesterday in building the foundation for the caisson which is to be sunk in the tunnel.

A reporter who made a tour of the homes that these men quitted on the day of the disaster found their families contented to let the managers of the company do as they thought best. It was the opinion of these people that the company would do all that is possible to recover the bodies at the earliest possible moment.

"The company has been very generous to us," said the widow of one of the unfortunate laborers yesterday; "we are paid the money that our husbands would have earned each week, just as if they were yet at work, and I think we have nothing to complain of."

Mr. Headly, who was found at work on the caisson, said that it was true that the managers are taking care of the men's families, and he added that they will continue to do so until the tunnel is finished. The widows of those who died in the employ of the company receive their husband's money every Saturday as if nothing had happened.

"Some of them," continued Mr. Headly, "are better off now than before. In one case in particular, the man had parted from his wife. They had not been on good terms for a long while. When the widow came here at the time of the accident to inquire as to his fate she was very poorly clad. Her principal garment was a calico wrapper. Now on her regular Saturday afternoon visit for her husband's money she wears ample and really nice clothing. Only two of the women come here regularly. To the others we send the money every week."

ALMOST INCREDIBLE.

Extraordinary Evidence in Regard to Click, the Alleged Murderous Sleep Walker of North Carolina.

[Charleston (N. C.) Observer.]

Information from Tyro, the scene of the recent somnambulistic murder, is that over one hundred people assembled at the coroner's inquest and preliminary trial. The body of Mr. Phelps was found lying nearly across the foot of the bed, on the right side, his head on his right arm, with three cuts of an axe, two of which, if not the third, were sufficient to cause instant death, one high enough on the head to reach the brain. The story of Mr. Click was that he dreamed the negro had entered the store, as anticipated by himself and Mr. Phelps. Then followed, according to his recollection, a bloody and terrible fight. When he awoke he was fleeing down stairs, and gradually recovering consciousness, he returned to the room where he and Phelps had been sleeping and realized at a glance the full horror of his deed. He at once fled screaming to the house of Mr. Grub, near by, and was met by that gentleman, who was aroused by his cries. Mr. Grub said his lamentations were heartrending, and that he told him at once that he had killed his best friend in his sleep. The alarm soon became general, and the neighbors collected from all quarters. They all testified that Click exhibited his regret in a most violent manner, and finally became so exhausted that he had to be carried home. It was proved by both the State and defendant's witnesses that Click was a somnambulist and had frequently injured his own person by jumping from the house window, sometimes through the glass from the second story, cutting himself considerably. He has also been known to get up and choke some of the family, saying that the bears in Texas were after him, and then run a quarter of a mile down near the river, and wake to find himself alone. When he went visiting he requested his neighbors to tie him, which they did. Last week he went to sleep in a room where his dead uncle lay a corpse. He suddenly arose with terrible expressions of fear, and started to seize his dead uncle. His sister and a gentleman caught him, got him awake, and he went back to bed. Many other instances were given. The court being satisfied from the evidence that the prisoner was not accountable for his actions while asleep, pronounced the evidence insufficient, whereupon Mr. Click returned to his home.

How the Prince Imperial Died.

Brigadier General Sir Evelyn Wood, who accompanied the ex-Empress Eugenie to Zululand, has sent to the papers a description of the death of the Prince Imperial, collected from the independent narratives of eighteen of the Zulus who participated in the attack on the Prince's party, and showing that the attacking party numbered forty, twelve of whom followed the Prince, and eight being immediately concerned in his death. The Zulus, having nearly surrounded the Prince's party, fired, and rushed on them as they were mounting. The Prince not having succeeded in mounting, ran alongside his horse until it broke away. The Prince followed his horse into the donga, until, being closely pressed by his pursuers, he turned upon them—in the words of the Zulus—"like a lion at bay." Being struck by an assegal inside the left shoulder, he rushed at the nearest opponent, who fled. Another Zulu then fired at the Prince when only ten yards from him. The Prince fired his pistol and faced his rapidly increasing foes, until menaced from his right and rear, and struck by another assegal, he regained the level on which he had first stood in the donga where he was speedily surrounded. He seized an assegal which had been thown to him—in struggling with his terrified horse his sword had fallen from its scabbard—and thus defended himself against seven or eight Zulus, who state they did not care to close in on him until he sank exhausted on his hips. The above facts were elicited from the Zulus, who were examined separately on the scene of the attack. It may be remarked that this is the first correct description of the affair that has yet been published.

Recipes for the Cook.

Bread Cakes.—Take any bits of bread you may have left after meals, soak them in milk or milk and water, until perfectly soft; mash fine, add two eggs, pinch of soda, salt to taste, and enough flour to make them fry nicely; drop the spoonfuls into hot butter or lard. These are inexpensive and good, and a better way to use dry bread than in puddings.

To Boil Eggs.—To boil eggs properly, place them in a dish having a close cover; pour over boiling water; cover and set away from the fire for ten or fifteen minutes. Eggs cooked in this way are more delicious and digestible than when allowed to boil in the old way. The heat of the water cooks them slowly to a jelly-like consistency, leaving the yolk harder than the white.

Sweetbreads Stewed.—Wash carefully, remove all bits of skin and fleshy matter, cover with cold water and heat to a boil; pour off the hot water and cover with cold until the sweetbreads are firm. If liked, rich lard as for frying before you put in the second water; stir in a very little water the second time. When they are tender add for each sweet bread a heaping teaspoonful of butter, a little chopped parsley, pepper, salt, and little cream. Let them simmer in this gravy for five minutes. Send to the table in a covered dish with gravy poured over them.

A Cream for Fruit.—Boil half a pint of cream and half a pint of milk with a bit of lemon peel; add a few almonds beaten to a paste with a drop of water and a little sugar. Take a teaspoonful of dried flour, rub it smoothly down with a little cold milk and few drops of orange-flower water; mix all together and let boil; let it remain till quite cool, and then add a little lemon juice.

Buttermilk Pudding. — Although from its consistency this can scarcely be called a pudding, still it is a very nice desert, and was eaten by our grandmothers when farina and corn starch were unheard of delicacies: Boil one quart of fresh buttermilk; beat one egg, a pinch of salt and a heaping teaspoonful of flour together, and pour into the boiling milk; stir briskly, and boil for two or three minutes, and serve while warm with sugar, or still better, maple syrup.

Good crullers.—To one quart of flour rub two scant teaspoonsful sea-foam, lump of butter the size of an egg, good cupful white sugar, a pinch of salt, yolks of two eggs. Work these together thoroughly, but very lightly, using the tips of your fingers. Moisten with enough milk to make as soft a dough as possible to roll out, using as little flour as you can, rolling out into twists. It must be a sticky dough. Keep your fingers just dipped in flour. If the mixture be too stiff, your crullers will be tough. Too much working will toughen them too. Have your lard well boiling, and drop in quickly and watch carefully.

The year 1880 is destined, it is believed, to be very memorable in the ecclesiastical annals of Germany, inasmuch as not only is it to see Cologne Cathedral completed, but the venerable cathedral of Frankfort-on-Main, part of which was burned in 1867, restored. Interest in this structure centres in the electoral chapel, in which the Archbishop of Maintz used to crown the German emperors, who were then annointed before the high alter. The first was thus crowned in 1562, and the last in 1792.

STATE NEWS.

Bedford is excited over a five-foot alligator found in a pond near by.

J. B. Ellis' saw-mill south of Spencer was totally destsoyed by fire yesterday. No insurance. Cause unknown.

L. P. Newby, an attorney at Knightstown, has been nominated for Prosecuting Attorney by the Republicans of Henry and Hancock counties.

Secretary Thompson and family have arrived at their home in Terre Haute, from the Pacific coast. He will remain there for some time.

John Barnes, of Hope, found James Piper at his house making himself too much at home, and ordered him away. Pipe went, but soon began stoning the house. Barnes fired at him, shooting him in the neck and inflicting a probably fatal wound.

The reservoir of the Warsaw Gaslight and Coke company burst on last Friday night. The company had expected to light the city with gas on last Thursday evening, but this accident will cause them to postpone the grand lighting up for a short time.

A bloody and desperate affray took place at Bedford, Lawrence county, between Charles and Emil Gaussen and three stonecutters employed at the quarries near that town, in which Charles Gaussen received nine stabs, two of them in the abdomen, and dangerous. All the parties concerned were arrested except the wounded man.

About four o'clock yesterday afternoon the barn of J. Raker, four miles from South Bend, was struck by lightning and burned down, together with its contents, consisting in part of sixteen bushels of wheat and twenty tons of hay. Loss, $2,500; insurance, $600.

A collision of a wrecking train with a disabled passenger train on the St. Louis Air Line road, near Carmel, badly wrecked both engines. A brakeman named Vickers had his left leg so crushed that it had to be amputated. Road agent Sullivan, trainmen Jacob Mauck and Wm. McDole and fireman Quest were more or less severely injured.

An Entertainment of Surpassing Interest.

The Montreal Herald thus unqualifiedly endorses Forepaugh's stupendous combination of menagerie, museum, circus, &c.:

"Both performances of Forepaugh's monster aggregation yesterday attracted immense audiences; far more than could ever hope to gain admittance crowded around the entrance gate, and only when it was necessary to proclaim that no more money would be taken, did those who were unfortunate enough to be last, turn away. The attractions of the circus and the excellence of the menagerie are now well-known themes and scarcely require to be again impressed upon the minds of our readers. Were it necessary there could be hardly any limit to a description. Each special feature is well worthy separate mention, and, moreover, eulogy. We can, however, heartily advise our readers to go and judge for themselves whether all that has been said of the show is not fulfilled, and in fact, more than fulfilled, whether it be the marvelous performances of the female Blondin, the daring feats of bare-back riding, the excruciatingly comical clows, the awe-inspiring cannon act of Mons. Royal; all are alike wonderful, and when combined with the collection of animals, form togethet an entertainment of surpassing interest."

A fellow named Beck fired a stone through the window of a Fairfield avenue residence last night because the ladies of the house would not accept of his attentions. Several male occupants of the hose thumped him soundly for throwing the stone.

A clerk in Biddle's drug store, named Krout, has been in the habit of purloining small articles from the store at various times. His habit was detected a short time ago and on condition that he would settle with the proprietor for what goods he had taken the matter was to be kept quiet, but Krout, who agreed to the proposition, has skipped out and his whereabouts are unknown. The value of the goods taken is about $500.

Hon. Walpole G. Colerick in Noble County.

The Kendallville News says: The meeting on last Friday evening at Mitchell Hall was attended by a large number of people. The address of our present member of Congress, Mr. Colerick, met the anticipation of his friends and won favorable comments from his political opponent. The speaker held the undivided attention of the audience througout his entire address of one hour and a half, and his arguments were a complete answer to the charges made by Republican politicians. But few of our people were acquainted with Mr. Colerick and had never met him before and we can safely assure him the entire vote of the Democratic party of Noble county this fall with some Republicans thrown in.

BACCHUS' BOOM.

The Impetus it Received at Police Court To-day.

John McNickle was the name of the first victim that waltzed up to the bar of justice to take his medicine this morning at police court. It was presumed that John had been drinking something slightly stronger than water and John's breath would warrant one in the opinion that he had a distillery in his stomach. His hands betokened hard labor, while the superfluous slack in his pants betokened an agonizing absence of grub. He explained all about how he came to get drunk, and his honor explained how it was that he would have to enrich the city treasury $3.00 worth. John didn't have the money, so those desiring to secure him for lecture engagements will address, "John McNickle, Stone Crackery," for the next fifteen days.

Luke Nolan, is one of those persons especially designed by providence to get a "corner" on whiskey. Luke did succeed in getting a corner in the calaboose and $5.00 of Luke's money now occupies a corner in the treasury.

Chas. Murphy, "the man with the iron jaw" put in his semi-occasional appearance at the reception. The cause of Murphy's discomfiture was the superfluous imbibation of various beverages not calculated to strengthen the locomotive powers of man and his honor deposited his avoirdupois on Murphy's anatomy to the extent of $5, which owing to the fact that Murphy does not carry a mint around in his pockets he was unable to pay and was compelled to accept a position in the crackery.

List of Officers.

The following is the list of officers appointed at the meeting of the "First Voters," held in the Circuit Court room last Tuesday evening:

FIELD OFFICERS.

Captain, Andrew Josephus Moynihan; First Lieutenant, Will Miner; Second Lieutenant, Emil Legraw; Third Lieutenant, Frank J. McMilty; Orderly Sergeant, Frank J. Woulfe; Corporal, Will M. Limecooley, Frank Gruber, C. D. Buckalow and Ed. France; Standard Bearers, Thomas O. Meagher, O. Keefe.

PRESIDING OFFICERS.

President, Josephus Francis Beegan; Vice-President, Joe Evans; Recording Secretary, Chas. L. Worden; Corresponding Secretary, A. Levanway; Treasurer, Henry Monning, jr.; Executive Committee, Will Mannix, Christ Myers, Henry Shuckman, Emil Legraw, Will Limecooley and Will Geary.

Just in Time.

About half past nine o'clock last night while officer Connors was going over the Fairfield avenue railroad crossing he noticed a short distance up the track a dark object lying across the rails. The passenger train bound west was approaching and he ran to see what the object occupying such a curious position could be. When he came up he found it to be a man in a beastly state of intoxication and unable to rise. The officer pulled him off the track and as he did the train went by. The fellow was taken to the calaboose and he can thank his stars and Connors that the coroner lost a stiff. His escape was almost miraculous.

Robbed.

At the south depot yesterday afternoon a well dressed man was robbed of a gold watch and $40 in money. As he could give no intelligent account of how it had disappeared, it is presumed he laid down and went to sleep and during the time was robbed. No clue has yet been obtained to the robbers nor is it at all likely that any will be.

Tony Pastor's Company.

To-morrow evening Tony Pastor's celebrated company will appear at the Academy of Music on which occasion a most excellent programme will be presented. The New York Herald of a recent date speaking of Pastor's Theatre, in that city, says: There was an overflowing house at this place of amusement last evening, and the ladies were out in force to witness one of the brightest and most amusing entertainments for which this theatre has become noted. Tony Pastor, a host in himself, has surrounded himself with a galaxy of the best artists in their respective lines, and last evening its full strength was brought into requisition. The French sisters in their characteristic clog dances, and the St. Felix sisters, four pretty little girls, in their pleasing songs, dances and marches, were particular features of the evening's programme. The acme of grotesque dancing and burlesque fighting was reached by "The Four Eccentrics" in their scene, and the Irish dialogues of the Kernell brothers were received with peals of laughter. Song and dance, mirth and music, comedy and burlesque tragedy, all found able exponents, and were presented in a manner which rendered the entertainment one of honest fun and good hearty humor. The burlesque of "Go West on the Emigrant Train" has been reconstructed and new situations introduced, and in its present shape met with a hearty reception.

Martin Blim, esq., editor of the Deutsch Amerikaner, a German weekly in Waterloo, Ill., sends the following flattering commendation: All that I wish you in your business is success; because such an article as you offer to the public, merits recommendation. My wife uses Hamburg Drops whenever she feels unwell, and the result is always satisfactory. Accept the thanks of myself and family for this valuable remedy.

MOTHS IN UPHOLSTERY.

For a suit of parlor furniture purchase three gallons of benzine and saturate the upholstery with the same by means of a watering pot, to which attach a rose sprinkler. Every moth, larvæ and egg will be killed. The benzine will dry out in a few hours, and in three or four days the odor will entirely disappear. The benzine will not injure the varnish or fabric, or wood or hair stuffing. Carpets can be treated in like manner with good effect. For furs, flannels, indeed all woolen articles which moth attack, benzine is almost invaluable. Such goods should be placed in a box sprinkled with benzine, after which close the box tightly, and in a day or two the pests will be exterminated and the benzine will evaporate on opening. In using benzine great care should be taken that no fire is near by, as the liquid, in fluid or vapor form, is very inflammable.

The above information will be valuable to many. But as an ounce of prevention is well said to be worth a pound of cure, it would be well to purchase all your upholstered furniture of Foster Brothers, who have never yet had a moth in their furniture department, who never propose to [illegible] will pay to any person who will prove they ever sold a piece of furniture troubled with these pests.

Foster Brothers guarantee every article of furniture or bedding that goes out of their establishment. They have every reason to believe they are selling furniture and bedding at smaller profits than was ever before attempted by any house in America.
